membership fee history

why now?

Parents told us in a recent survey that athlete protection was most important to them. And, USASF's top priority has always been about keeping athletes safe. No form of abuse, including child sexual abuse, has a place in our sport.

Also, we're providing enhanced resources for coaches to build their skills and create safe training environments for athletes.

athlete safety & well-being

New and improved ways to strengthen abuse and misconduct prevention efforts:

- new Safe@AllStar training to provide child sexual abuse prevention education and training for athletes, parents, coaches, event producers and all adults who work with minor athletes
- improved processes for reporting abuse and misconduct through an unbiased, third-party consulting firm
- continuous background check monitoring so that screening profiles of adult participants stay up-to-date throughout the season
- all-member access to an online directory to see if the adults in your All Star world have what it takes to be eligible and/or credentialed members

Enhanced access to coaching resources that raise the athlete standard of care:

- credentialing courses that enhance coaching techniques and safe training
- ongoing educational resources and opportunities that provide coaches with a framework to teach safe and effective skill progressions
